Dialogic: article/ response: from a symposium: "The format of the symposia was to invite speakers to present their arguments that addressed current issues in American literary historiography. A respondent was invited to give commentary for each presentation, and each paper was discussed vigorously by all in attendance. The presenters then had several weeks to revise their papers, on the basis of the comments—both formal and informal—that their work stimulated. The formal respondents had a look at the final version of the papers and then were asked to make whatever changes to their remarks that they thought appropriate."
